BURN VICTIM FACES LONG RECUPERATION

Well Known Farmer
Scared In Gas
Fire

Jacob McAfee, well known Glen Moore RD 1 farmer, faces long recuperation in Memorial hospital, West Chester, after being seriously burned over 20 percent of his body in a farm accident Thursday afternoon.

The quick-thinking of McAfee's nephew, Paul Haldeman, Ludwig's Corner, and Haldeman's wife Dottie, probably saved McAfee's life.

The 57 year old farmer was cranking a tractor when a spark ignited leaking gasoline and set fire to his overalls.

McAfee began to run and Haldeman screamed for him to lie down. The flames ceased, but McAfee raised himself to help put out a fire at the front of the tractor.

THE DRAFT started the gasoline soaked overalls flaming again, and by the time Haldeman and his wife knocked McAfee down and removed the blazing clothing, the farmer was

them all together and they spell —CIRCUS.

In the sultry heat of Friday afternoon, the circus opened in Pottstown. The Clyde Beatty, Cole Brothers circus — sponsored by the Pottstown Jaycees — raised its four-masted Big Top on the Pottsgrove High school athletic field for two performances.

The blue and white Big Top and the lesser tents and side-shows were aflutter with the traditional many-colored flags.

The circus came with all the trimmings — elephants, African lions, royal Bengal tigers, Jolly Ella, the world's fattest woman, camels, horses, dare devils, aerialists, Clyde Beatty and clowns.

One of the clowns was a Mercury reporter, who, after sliding down the side of an elephant on which he rode into the Big Top, commented:

"That was the roughest ride of my life. The elephant wasn't so bad, but boy — that chain harness!"

AS ANY clown knows, the circus is for kids, and it was Pottstown's children who were most delighted with the color, noise and excitement.

While the "Blood Sweating Hippopotamus" sweated outside in the afternoon sun, some of the outstanding acts under the Big Top were the Flying Reddons, an aerialist act; Bob Top and Lauren, a high-speed roller skating act, and the midjet clown.

street, when the high flying aerialists went through their daredevil stunts. But, oh me, it was all so tiresome for a little tot! That's what 3 year old Mark Bellini, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Bellini, 949 North Hills boulevard, thought by the end of the circus.

The world of the sawdust ring, flying trapeze, elephant and lion tamer is a delightful yet strange one for a child. The expressions on the faces of tots taking in all the sights and sounds and smells of the bigtop shown above point this out. For 3 year old Stephen Tinney, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. The three year old girl shifted nervously from one foot to the other. She craned her neck looking around at the strange faces. Then she spotted the laughing face of the clown. The clouded expression on her face changed into a broad grin. She started laughing and clapped her hands.

"Mommy, Mommy, there's a clown! Hiya, clown", she waved.

This scene was repeated time after time Friday, as thousands of children got acquainted with a Mercury reporter clown making his first appearance under the bigtop. The thrill of laughing children, meeting that storybook character for the first time, is the biggest reason men from all walks of life donned the colorful garb and makeup of the clown.

I COULDN'T help thinking this throughout my first stint in the sawdust ring of the Clyde Beatty, Cole brothers circus at the Friday matinee at Pottsgrove High school.

The doubts I had before stepping out of the humid atmosphere of the makeup tent into the packed main tent faded when I saw the mass of smiling faces around me.

Armed with three new warrants, South Coventry township Police Chief Robert Conway Friday pressed the search for Thomas Copeland, Honey Brook RD 2 man wanted in the serious beating of Mrs. Fay Brewer, Coventryville road, Pottstown RD 2.

Mrs. Brewer identified Copeland as her assailant, after he attacked her Thursday afternoon in the parking lot of a Route 100 hotel and bar, five miles south of Pottstown.

BOARD PLEADS FOR END

The Public Utility commission was asked Friday to reopen, after 27 years, roads in Stowe and Douglass (Berks) township — "as well as providing adequate safety features at the Squirrel Hollow railroad crossing."

While the bulk of testimony during the four hour hearing was directed to the need for additional roads, the main issue before the Public Utility commission was a request from the Reading and Pennsylvania railroads to close Squirrel Hollow road.

The crossing—guarded by a single, rusted "stop, look

100,000th Person X-rayed At Hospital

Mrs. Arlene Hess, Gilbertsville RD 1, unwittingly marked up a singular achievement at Pottstown hospital Friday morning.

She was the 100,000th person to be X-rayed at the hospital since the count began in 1927. Between 1916 and 1927, another count of 7500 patients was taken, then ended.

And therein lies a tale.

Dr. George R. Pechstein, Pottstown hospital radiologist in charge of the X-ray lab since October 15, 1955, took the occasion to give the public a look into the complicated but interesting world of X-ray.

Each patient who gets X-rayed has about four films taken. In gastro-intestinal examination, the number may be as many as ten. Using four or

Robinson Company
Union Defers
Action

The United Clay Workers association of Pottstown, the Robinson Clay Product company independent union, soundly defeated a strike proposal which would have idled 160 workmen on non-monetary issues.

The vote was 121 against the strike and only 25 in favor. The union was bargaining without success to iron out differences with management concerning seniority clauses in its contract. The Clay Workers are under contract until Jan. 1, 1962. At that time, the non-monetary issues will be negotiated along with wage issues.

Homeowners' Crisis- Pay For New Sewer Before Losing Home

By PAUL LEVY
(Mercury Staff Writer)

Fifteen North Coventry homes expected to be condemned as soon as the Route 422 bypass construction begins will still be forced to hook into the township sewer system—at an average cost of $500.

And there is no guarantee that the State will include the sewer North Coventry Sewer authority, costs in later condemnation awards.

"All we can do is assume that the property owners will have the money refunded by the State because the value of the properties will be increased with the completion of the sewage system," John L. Orgill explained Friday night.

"And we can't guarantee that," Orgill, secretary of the North Coventry Sewer authority, admitted.

WHILE THE financial problem is the major one of the 15 property owners along the 300 block of South Hanover street, it isn't the only one.

"We don't know whether we're coming or going," Mrs. Leon J. Deloia, 329 South Hanover street, explained. "We've had no definite word from the State that we're still in the path of the bypass, and no word from the sewer authority on why we have to pay for something that we may never get to use."

The lack of knowledge is compounded by the fact that

Freedom, Dedication of Press Wins Accolades of 6 Latins

The first job of a newspaper is public service, six Latin American trade unionists were told Friday during a tour of The Mercury.

The one-hour tour was the climax of a week-long visit of the six to Pottstown—selected by the State department as a "typical American small town."

"The Mercury is the only newspaper they will visit during their tour of the United States," Frank Walling, the State Department representative with the group, explained. "It was selected as typical of the outstanding small newspapers in America."

Mercury Peaks At 87 Degrees

If it felt like the tropics Friday as far as Pottstown was concerned, there's no wonder.

A high of 87 degrees reached at 5 p. m. made it the hottest day since August 30 last year—and only two other days since 1959 have been warmer—both last August.

So there's your answer. Anyone who complained of the cold last week has been shut up good and proper. Overnight temperatures, which held up above 70 degrees, also set a 1961 record and took you back to last summer to find an equal.

A brief, but furious, down-pour shortly after 8 p. m. took the edge off the oppressive heat. It should be in the low 60s on the porch thermometer by morning today, and about 10 degrees cooler this afternoon than it was Friday—a high in the upper 70s is forecast.

The sky will be partly cloudy today, with some clearing to tomorrow, a continued cooling trend to be expected and no rain anticipated until Monday night or Tuesday, when about a half-inch may fall.

He also explained that after a week of "living with and learning from Pottstonians," the Latin American unionists feel that this is the kind of

300 PERSONS PETITION FOR SAFE CROSSING

School Children May Collect Funds
For Light

East Greenville residents seeking protection for school children crossing the Route 29 "death trap" near Sixth and Main streets, probably will carry their fight to State officials.

Petitions carrying the signatures of approximately 300 persons already have been received by the Sisters of Mercy, the nuns who teach at St. Philip Neri school.

But parents instrumental in the drive for lower speed limits, a traffic light and police guards during school hours, anticipate a "hands off" attitude from borough council.

While council will be asked for help in making safer the crossing where 8 year old Randall Urfer was fatally injured on the way home from school eight days ago, the petitioners recognize that since Route 29 is a State road, the responsibility may rest there.

It was learned that the children are considering collecting money to pay for a traffic signal, to overcome that obstacle in the event borough council would not appropriate the funds.

town they would like to live in. "It is a city with many schools and churches and business opportunities," Walling continued. "But mostly they like it because it is a city with civic pride—pride in what it is accomplishing and what it is providing for its citizens."

"And one reason it has civic pride is because it has a newspaper like The Mercury," he added.

THE UNIONISTS were guided through the newspaper office by General Manager Shandy Hill, who explained the step-by-step process which turns an event that is happening today into a news story in tomorrow's paper.

The six—four from Peru, one from Honduras and one from Venezuela—were also told that the press is the only business guaranteed by the United States Constitution and its responsibility is to serve "as a watchdog of the public's interest at all times."

"The newspaper's job is to mirror the day's events and present an accurate reflection of the community's

Three year old Cynthia Wolf wouldn't believe it. She didn't think that little red spot on the nose of Mercury reporter turned clown, Willard S. Randall, was makeup. So she insisted on . . . that's right, kissing it, of all things. A clown's role is to make kids happy, so Randall flashed his biggest circus grin for the daughter of Mrs. John L. Wolf, Pruss Hill road, Pottstown RD 3. She was one of hundreds of tots and oldsters to watch Randall perform as elephant driver, clown and ringmaster at the 4 p. m. performance of the Clyde Beatty, Cole Brothers circus Friday at Pottsgrove High school field.

A worm-digging expedition that developed into a mystery confronts Pottstown Det. Sgt. Thomas A. Lawler, who was trying to clear up this latest puzzler Friday so he can get back on the Blakely case.

Lawler technically is looking for a person who attacked George Nagengast, 44, of 918 North Washington street, Wednesday evening while Nagengast was looking for fishing bait between the Reading Railroad line and the Schuylkill river.

Write-ins Assure Grubb Re-election

Incumbent Republican Tax Collector Charles S. Grubb received 27 write-in votes on the Democratic ticket in the May primary, assuring him of election in November.

Grubb was unopposed for a third four-year term by the Democrats, but needed at least one write-in vote on the Democratic ballot to assure his election, the county board of elections announced Friday.

Grubb, 52, a former Ninth ward councilman, resigned in 1953 when Democrat Thomas L. Rutter declined to seek a third term. He defeated Elmer Keck by more than 400 votes in the election and four years later topped the GOP slate with a 2163 vote landslide victory of John Cione.

Thinking Nagengast would return after getting attention for his wounds, Dinno borrowed Nagengast's pitchfork.

"I thought the guy was coming back," Dinno said.

Trujillo Forces' Seek Mastermind Of Assassination

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Dominican armed forces of young Rafael Trujillo Jr. announced Friday assassination of his father has been partly avenged by the slaying of one assassin and capture of three others by special agents.

But the military conceded the

accused mastermind, ex-Brig. Gen. Juan Tomas Diaz, got away, and said he is being hunted.

The announcement came as a dramatic aftermath of a massive funeral in tribute to the old dictator, Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo Sr., 69, who was cut down from ambush Tuesday night.

The military statement said one assassin was machine-gunned to death Thursday while firing at special agents from behind an aunt in whose home he was found hiding here. It said another was seized in the home of a Roman Catholic priest.

Despite an old feud between the Trujillos and the Catholic Church over repressive measures under the dictatorship, the slain feudal ruler was given Catholic funeral rites at his home city, San Cristobal, 23 miles from the capital.

And the armed forces said it was posting guards at churches throughout the nation as a result of finding that one assassin had been given asylum by the clergy.

Efforts went ahead here to give the old Trujillo dictatorship a future under Lt. Gen. Rafael Jr., 32, and the nominal government chiefs who served his father.

Rafael Jr. was a year-old infant when Rafael Sr. took over in 1930. Rafael Jr. — a colonel by appointment of his dying father at 3 and a brigadier general at 9 — became chief of the air, sea and land forces Thursday night by decision of the government heads.

Late Friday afternoon, after the funeral, Rafael Jr. was confirmed in the newly created post by unanimous vote — 24-0 in the Senate and 60-0 in the Chamber of Deputies.

The legislative stamp was that of the old dictatorship, and the extension of Trujillo tactics won out there as expected, but forces of the assassin faction still were at large.

From elsewhere in the Americas, nations that put this country outside their pale because of its totalitarian character openly expressed misgivings.

The United States asked the Organization of American States to send a watchdog team here to head off what it called a reported wave of terror since the assassination. The OAS group in charge of penalties (sanctions) against offending nations then decided to meet again early next week.

In Caracas, Venezuela asked for an urgent meeting of the OAS on the critical Dominican situation and said Venezuela would invoke an OAS right to intervene in this country in case of attack on it — presumably from nearby Cuba.

David Ben-Gurion Finally Meets Winston Churchill

LONDON (AP)—Israel's Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion and Sir Winston Churchill, friends for years by correspondence, met Friday for the first time for a 25-minute chat in Churchill's secluded West London home.

"He is the greatest man of our time," Ben-Gurion said on emerging from the talks.

The Israeli prime minister came here after conferences in Canada with Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker and in New York with President Kennedy.

He also conferred here with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Foreign Secretary Lord Home, chiefly about current political tensions in the Middle East and the need to help the new nations of Africa develop.

He plans to continue his talks with Western leaders at a meeting in Paris Monday with President Charles De Gaulle.

Sitting side by side in armchairs at Churchill's home, a deacon in the mantelpiece, aides in the background, Ben-Gurion and Churchill rambled over milestones of British and Israeli history.

The 1917 declaration by Britain's Lord Balfour promising the Jews a national home; the work of the late Israeli President Chaim Weizmann; Churchill's relationships with Zionism, and the rise of modern Israel.

REPUBLICANS SELECT NEW PARTY CHIEF

William E. Miller Succeeds Sen. Morton

ROMAN CATHOLIC PICKED BY GOP

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. William E. Miller won unanimous election as Republican national chairman Friday and promptly declared war on President Kennedy's handling of foreign and domestic affairs.

Miller, 47, a lawyer from western New York State, was chosen to succeed Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky in a session in which Republicans publicly paraded their party unity.

The slim, dark-haired new GOP chairman is the second Roman Catholic elected by the committee. The first was Thomas C. Carter of Montana who served in 1892-96.

Taking over from Morton, who resigned to campaign for re-election as senator next year, Miller wasted no time in sailing into Kennedy and his administration.

The new chairman told cheering Republicans: "I suspect that if we had a parliamentary system, there would be a resounding vote of no confidence in the Kennedy administration."

"There is a helluva difference between a sense of histrionics and a sense of history. There is a vast difference between campaigning for and being a president."

Miller said the Kennedy administration has proceeded "from crisis to crisis to new crises to take care of the remedies." He said Republicans will withhold fire on international decisions only to the point where they believe that in remaining silent they would not be fair to their party members and to Americans in general.

"I don't favor nitpicking and carping," he told a news conference. "But we will criticize when we have something to criticize and we will attack when we have something to attack."

As a case in point, Miller said he is opposed to the tractor-for-prisoners trade with Cuba on moral and legal grounds.

"We Republicans are as humane as anyone else," he said. "But if we are going to pay ransom we have to think of the millions behind the Iron Curtain. We are against building up the military and economic strength of our potential enemies by ransom."

The GOP chairman said he accepts Kennedy's denial of reports that the President had told Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain that it would take a year to condition the American people to admission of Communist China to the United Nations. But he said Republicans should make their position clear.

"Our position is that we don't need Red China in the United Nations to preserve world peace and we oppose its admission," he said.

Miller predicted Republicans will win control of the House in 1962 and make substantial gains in Senate seats.

Soviet Union Grants Credit to Somalia

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union Friday agreed to grant the new African nation of Somalia a long-term credit of 47 million rubles—officially valued at $52.1 million—and build two hospitals, a school, a printing house and a radio station free of charge. A federal judge who threatened he issued a temporary restraining order against four Freedom Riders organizations — including the Congress of Racial Equality — and five Negro leaders, and further notice.

In a series of sweeping decrees, U.S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., also put Montgomery police and a former reserve policeman under stern injunctions against bus violence, with indefinite prison sentences as the penalty for violation.

He also left in effect, until further court action, a restraining order issued earlier prohibiting the Ku Klux Klan and three individuals from any future violence against Freedom Riders or any other interstate bus passengers.

Although he put the blame for the recent race rioting in Montgomery and elsewhere in Alabama squarely on the Klan — and charged police with "willful failure" to prevent violence, Johnson was critical of Negro leaders and Freedom Rider organizations, too.

He said the segregation-challenging bus trips through Alabama "are directly causing an undue burden and restraint upon interstate commerce."

Denouncing the Freedom Riders as "agitation" and "nonbonafide interstate trips," Johnson declared, "those who sponsor, finance and encourage groups to come into this area with the knowledge that such publicized trips will foment violence . . . are just as effective in causing an obstruction" to interstate travel as the

DeGaulle Promises Anti-Red Support

PARIS (AP) — President Kennedy's world's most dangerous is- nces were discussed without concealment. The two presidents emerged, these informants said, with far clearer understanding of the realities of each other's positions and problems.

The French gave every evidence of being enormously pleased with the results of the two-nation summit. One French source said it was regarded as the most successful American-French conference since before World War II.

The Americans also exhibited great satisfaction. One highly placed U.S. source said it had been a long, long time since France and the United States had such a searching inquiry into world problems. The Americans were pleased, too, at how De Gaulle went out of his way to bestow elaborate praise on the 44-year-old U.S. chief executive.

One source said that as a result of the conference, French-American relations are better now than under the last U.S. administration, because there is a clearer understanding now. This, the informant added, generated a feeling of solidarity.

The U.S. President's final public statement came at a luncheon news conference at which Kennedy said it is important that there be no miscalculation on either party at the Vienna summit.

Then, speaking of Berlin, he said: "Let me . . . sum it up by saying that I think that neither Gen. de Gaulle nor I would feel it appropriate to have our rights, statutory rights, in West Berlin changed by force or the threat of force."

The rights of the Western powers in occupied Berlin are guaranteed by Soviet-Western postwar agreements. Khrushchev has been threatening to sign a separate peace treaty, perhaps soon, with Communist East Germany as a means of ending those rights and driving the British, French and Americans out of the isolated city.

The two presidents, their communiqué said, discussed such things as their position with regard to the Soviet Union and the Communist world, the activities of the United States and France in Asia, Africa and Latin America, aid to underdeveloped countries, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and means of strengthening "that fundamental association of free nations."

The French and Americans have differences with regard to NATO, the United Nations as a peace organization and other issues. Apparently neither tried to talk the other out of his position but each president's position was explored with remarkable candor, officials said.

He once slipped out of a theater where a show of his was playing to wire a delinquent male star: "I am watching your performance from last row. Wish you were here."

And to an actor who took liberties with his script, Kaufman wired: "Your performance magnificent and improving every day. Sorry I can't say same about lines."

Kaufman was born in Pittsburgh, Nov. 14, 1889. He started his career as a newspaperman, working on the Washington Times and the New York Evening Mail. He hit his stride as a member of the dramatic staff first on the New York Tribune, later on the Times.

The first play to come from the pen of Kaufman was, characteristically, a joint effort, "Someone to Watch Over Me," written with Larry Light in a custody suit between Evans and Walter Percival and Miss Astor and her husband of produced in 1918. Kaufman's last Broadway show was "Silk Stockings," which he had written with his second wife, Leueen MacGrath. It opened in 1955. Two years later, he and Miss MacGrath were divorced. However, they continued their theatrical collaboration and six months ago finished an as yet unproduced comedy, "I Give It Six Months."

Kaufman was married for 20 years to Beatrice Bakrow, by his career as a newspaperman, whom he had his only child. The first Mrs. Kaufman died before his marriage to Miss MacGrath.

Court Rejects Widow's Plea For Resentencing of Driver

A petition for the reconsideration of the involuntary manslaughter sentence of Norristown Attorney Julian W. Barnard was thrown out of court Friday after a 40 minute hearing.

The petition was filed on behalf of Mrs. Pina Stansbery, whose husband, Robert Lee Stansbery, was killed last November after being struck by the attorney's car in East Norristown.

Barnard was fined $500 and placed on probation for two years on April 26 after pleading "no defense" to charges of involuntary manslaughter and failure to stop at the scene of the accident.

The next day, in the defiance of the "no driving" clause in the terms of his probation, he was seen driving. Brought before Berks County Judge Warren K. Hess, who was sitting as a visiting judge in Montgomery county, Barnard was warned that if found driving again he would face a jail sentence.

THE PETITION filed by Mrs. Stansbery's attorney, Horace A.

Holl to Take Legislative Seat Monday

Edwin G. Holl, Lansdale, who was elected to the State Legislature from the third legislative district of Montgomery County at a special election on Primary Election day, will take his oath of office in Harrisburg at 4 p. m. Monday.

Holl, Republican, defeated Charles Dasch, Pottstown, for the seat, one of four allotted to the third district.

The post was declared vacant last January when Floyd K. Brenninger, Lansdale, re-elected for a two-year term, refused to take his oath of office as a result of him allegedly being bypassed in a Republican committee appointment.

The new legislator said he has been receiving numerous telephone calls and letters concerning suggestions, recommendations on possible legislation. He also has been talking to various citizens of the area on a variety of problems.

"I HAVE developed some definite ideas about some legislation I wish to introduce," he said. "But I do not feel I should make any specific statements at this time as I wish to consult with colleagues and others in Harrisburg."

"I'm very enthusiastic about going to Harrisburg."

"Most of the calls I have been receiving concern the condition of State highways in our area. I must agree with the callers."

Some of the roadways are in atrocious condition. This is one thing I particularly want to look into as a representative."

Radium Victim Attends Reunion

Laura E. McGann, whose career in education was ended by an overdose of radium, will attend the 50th anniversary reunion of the Bucknell university class of 1911 today and tomorrow.

Miss McGann, Pennsburg RD 1, received the overdose while being treated for an internal illness and was stricken with a spastic paralysis that put her in the hospital for more than five years.

It also prevented her from getting her doctor's degree in education after being one of the first women school principals in the United States.

Eight years ago, however, the still spry 72 year old Miss McGann found another way to serve — as assistant administrator of the Nurses Registry of the Germantown Medical Doctors unit, an organization that 24 hours a day dispatches nurses in response to emergency calls in the Germantown area.

LUTHERAN LOANS ATLANTIC CITY, (AP)—United Lutheran congregations have outstanding loans totalling 28 million dollars from their denomination's home missions board as part of the financing of 891 new church structures costing $75 million since 1959, the board reports.

MARKS OF AN INDIVIDUAL BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—The Rev. Anthony J. McMullen, a professor of philosophy at Canisius college, says young people should work diligently to perfect their abilities in their early years. He told a student group:

"The marks of a mature individual are these: (1) He exercises mastery in the few little areas where he can, (2) he exercises mastery while young, and (3) he does what lies in his power and trusts in God, who produces great things."

Viruses, Insects Attack Trees

By EARL ARONSON AP Newsfeatures

Viruses, bacteria, insects and fungi cause much trouble for your trees, but some of the worst ailments stem from other sources.

Let's ask the doctor to diagnose them:

1. Dropsy—Caused by wet feet, or too much water around the root system. Poor drainage generally is responsible. Hemlock and taxus are trees readily affected. Cork-like swellings of irregular shape and size appear on foliage and twigs. The foliage becomes discolored and needles drop off easily. The remedy is trenching, installation of drains or dry wells, to remove excess water.

2. Chlorosis—This is common to pin oak, rhododendron and other broadleaf evergreens. Lack of available iron in the soil is a major cause. Leaves appear to be anemic. Leaves pale or yellow. Add chelated iron salts to pick up acidity in the soil and perk up the tree.

3. Suffocation—Areas hardest hit are new housing developments where fill piled over roots cause shade trees to die back. The heavy layer of soil smothers and retards growth. As branches die, borers and bark beetles invade and kill. Feed these trees immediately upon spotting symptoms: lower the soil grade, built a well around the tree, then add fine topsoil. If you change the grade, cut back the crown as much as one-third to compensate for loss of roots.

4. Girdling roots—This is common to many trees, especially maples. Girdling occurs when roots are twisted in planting or if walks or other construction force roots to grow in abnormal directions in search of food and water. You can detect this trouble by discoloration of foliage or dying branches on one side of the tree. Cut away girdled roots, paint the exposed cuts and feed the tree.

Hot Day Guesses Expected to Soar After Sudden Blast of Summer Air

The Mercury's Weather Editor is bracing himself for a flood of entries in the annual Hot Weather Guessing game, after Friday's temperatures nearly touched last year's winning mark.

The high figure was 87 and a fraction degrees, less than a degree lower than last August 30, when 88.2 degrees topped $130 worth of merchandise and credit for the winner.

The contest is easy to enter, and there's $130 more in valuable prizes awaiting the winner. Simply write down the day, hour and minute during June, July or August which you figure will be the hottest moment.

Sign your name and full address to the coupon in today's Mercury, and mail it to the Weather Editor here. One entry per person, but the whole family can take part.

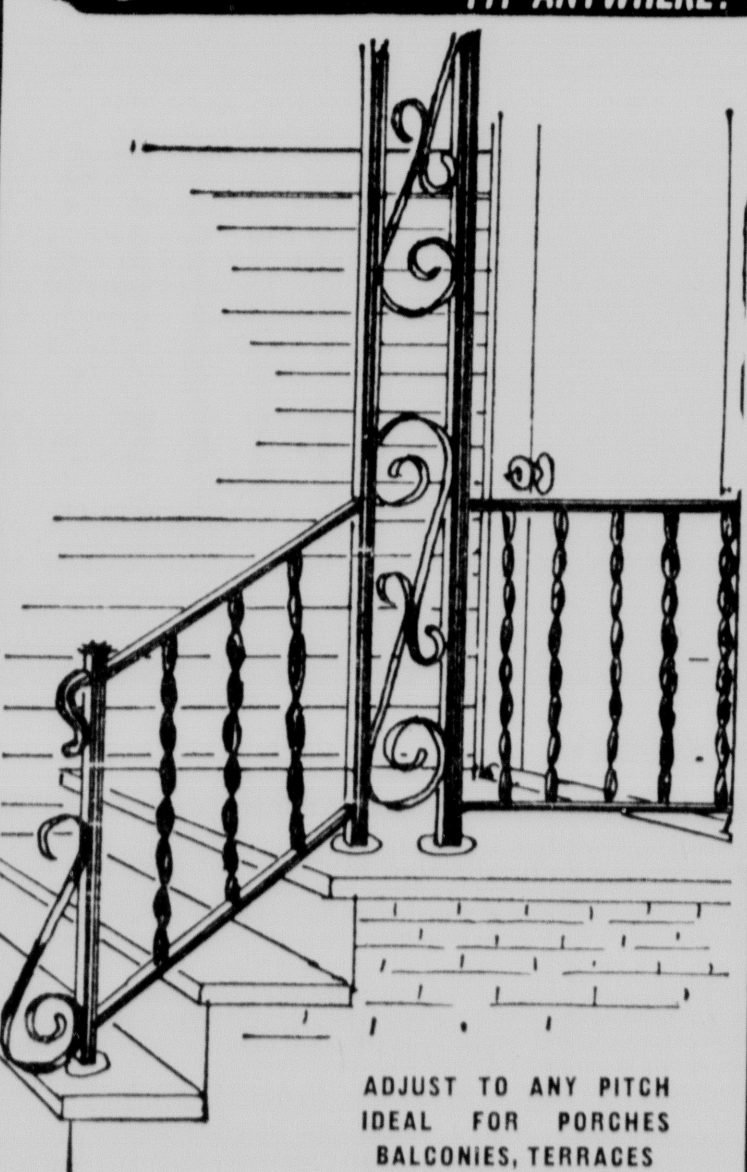

Remember, your entry must be received at least 48 hours before the winning time actually arrives. Two of Friday's three entrants picked the end of August as the hottest time. The third chose July. But the contestants might start backtracking.

Sylvia Bergquist, Pottstown Box 21, picked July 28 at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Florence Bickhart, 333 Gay street, Royersford, selected Aug. 26 at 3:15 p. m. Lorraine Dempsey, 427 South Third avenue, Royersford, chose Aug. 24 at 4:38 p. m.

Saturday Sermon

Safety Prevention

By EDGAR T. CHRISSEMER, Pastor
Transfiguration Lutheran Church

"Every Common Bush," Dr. Chrissemer's new book, is a collection of 62 inspirational articles. This Saturday sermon is not an excerpt, but the book contains many essays you'll enjoy. It's on sale at H. F. Smith & Son, High and Charlotte street. The Lighthouse,
King and Penn street, and the Heritage Book Shop 10 North Evans street.

ON the night of April 17, 1906, George Banks, dynamite expert, crept into the granite quarry above San Francisco to set off the most tremendous blast of his career.
He honeycombed the rocks with explosives, using electric wires and a detonator so all the charges would be set off at once.
Then Banks waited until morning and pressed the plunger. There was a terrific roar as the earth rocked beneath his feet and he was thrown violently to the ground!
Dazed and bewildered, he picked himself up and looked down with awe at the ruined city of San Francisco. He saw shattered buildings and rising columns of smoke.
It was incredible that his blast should have had such devastating effect!
Not until late afternoon did he learn the truth. It was not his dynamite blast that had shaken the city.
By an amazing coincidence he had set off his explosion at the exact moment that Nature released the first tremor of the San Francisco earthquake!

Many of the disasters that plague mankind are laid at the feet of Nature; but a large share of the blame belongs to human nature!
There are coincidences of Nature that cannot be avoided, but there are accidents of human nature that result from safety prevention!
Some people look like accidents on their way to occurring because they have thrown all caution to the winds.
They drive their cars as though determined no accident will be prevented if they can help it!

People laugh at natives who beat drums to ward off evil spirits, and then think they can break up traffic jams by blowing horns!
What some people don't know about safety
would fill a hospital!
A perfect holiday is a no-hit, no-run baseball game and the same for the automobile driver.

Another cause of safety prevention is to be unprepared. People are usually prepared for any emergency if it happens to the other fellow!
A man walked into the village grocery store and furtively asked to buy up all the stale eggs and overripe tomatoes they had in stock.
The clerk with a grin declared: "You must be going to the theatre tonight to see that new comedian."
"Sh-h, not so loud," whispered the customer. "I am the new comedian!"

The man who plans ahead stays ahead!
It takes as much energy to wish as it does to plan.
An intelligent plan is a well-marked highway to one's destination.
A man can't expect to get there if he doesn't know where he's going!

On the night before the fatal flight, Amelia Earhart, famous woman flyer, took her drift bombs to her hotel room for safekeeping.
These bombs, dropped at sea, gave a nav-igator a point from which to reckon a plane's direction and determine its course. Without them, a pilot could easily become lost.
When last heard from, the woman pilot was 300 miles off her course!
Later, when all hope was abandoned, they searched her hotel room.

There, near the door where she had put them, were the forgotten drift bombs!
Success involves risks but not carelessness!

We have no control over our birth or death, but the interval between is our own responsibility!

PUNKIN CORNERS,

Editor, The Mercury,
Dear Sir 'n' Brother:
Wal, I see by the papers where an archeologist has uncovered a very ancient stone
tub. Probably left over from some prehistoric spring house cleaning.
A London pub has concocted two "Space Age
cocktails"—an "Astronaut", bourbon-based, and a "Cosmonaut", with a vodka base. Either one, I understand, is guaranteed to get you high.
An explorer lauds a diet
of walrus and rhubarb.
There'll be plenty of rhubarb around our place if the cook ever starts dishing out any walrus steaks!
And say: These early June breezes can turn any wide-brimmed chapeau into an off-the-face hat.
Hopin' you air the same,

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

BARRY G., aged 37, is a paraplegic case, for he is paralyzed in both legs.
"But that didn't stop Barry," his wife
proudly told me, "for he has a fertile brain and is very deft with tools.
"So he fitted up a workshop in our garage. It is connected with the house without any steps. He can thus go back and forth in his wheel chair as he pleases.
"And he has developed a wonderful business. For example, he makes bird houses and wooden toys, plus all sorts of novelty items.
"So he is busy all the time. And his morale is perfect, for he realizes nowadays
a man's feet and legs are not very important in most fields of endeavor."

WE PSYCHOLOGISTS salute Barry and all other folks who refuse to surrender meekly to any physical defect.
Barry's wife is a jewel, too, so Barry was a smart man for picking so wisely.
Actually, most of the work of the modern world does not involve a man's feet.
So the loss of one leg or both of them, is not a great obstacle to full output.
For example, Barry uses all the power saws and other shop equipment of a carpenter or cabinet maker.

Nowadays the usual office job does not require your feet. For instance, a typist needs only an alert brain, plus nimble fingers. And that goes also for a bank teller, cashier at a super market or any retail store.

YOU READERS can list dozens of other jobs where the feet are not important, so please get over the idea that a man is seriously hampered in his workaday world by lack of legs.
This is an age when keen brains and nimble hands are at a premium, so it is actually wise for employers to hire men and women who have some physical defect.

For those folks are usually "spunky," meaning they have the "will" to work. In plain, unvarnished language, they have "guts."

And a spunky person without legs can figuratively run circles around the lackadastical fellow despite the latter's two good legs.

the Cuban tractor deal as blackmail? We

We should have helped Cuba long ago and if we must do so under some pressure now, that's the way the ball bounces.
We fought a neutral Laos and now seem

SHOW BUSINESS insiders are snickering

Who knows him over there?
Columbia Pictures are looking for "a teen-eight) to grant interviews and pose for pic-

not too big to see or talk to anybody."
A famed teenage rock 'n' roll singer, who

There's talk that the next Cannes Film growing importance of TV in Europe. Dis-prestige for the cinema producers, but the fact remains that at the last convulse, several pictures were shown that were made especial-

Interpreting The News
West On Defensive
As Summit Opens

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

Notwithstanding the Kennedy-
De Gaulle reiteration of confidence in Allied strength, and notwithstanding the impossible Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement to keep their meeting on a personal exploration basis, the West is on the defensive in Vienna today.

The defensive, this time, is not merely an inherent part of the Allied position of resistance to an aggressive enemy in a conflict
they did not seek.

It stems from the demonstrated ability of the Red Chinese-Soviet bloc to coalesce for the purpose of Communist gains in Southeast Asia.

It stems from serious American losses of prestige in Cuba and Laos.

And it stems, more importantly perhaps than from any other circumstance, from the internal successes of the Soviet scientific and economic programs, lending at least a semblance of reason to Communist derision of Western efforts to negotiate from a position of strength.

It causes the Communists surrounding Khrushchev to say that all the world needs to attain peace is to listen to reason, as reason is expounded by the Soviet premier.

And yet in the long totting of history, though the Kennedy-was having his first date with a girl and a blind date at that. He went to his old-and asked his advice on how to act. His older brother said: "If you want to get along with the girls, you must compliment them. If the girl has pretty teeth, tell her so and she'll be pleased. If she is a good dancer, tell her that, and if she is pretty make sure you tell her you think so." Armed with this advice, the young brother went on his date. He was home around 9:30 p.m. looking crestfal-

len. "What's the matter?" his brother asked, "didn't you do as I suggested?"
"Well," the boy said, "I couldn't tell her she had pretty teeth because she had braces on. I couldn't tell her she was a good dancer because she stepped all over my feet. And I couldn't tell her she was pretty because she was the homeliest thing I had ever seen." "Well, what did you tell her?" "I had to say something, so I said, 'You don't sweat much, for a fat girl!'"

were not able to get into the big Big Top standing behind the big tent watching the handler prepare the sweating elephants for their rumbling entrance . . . Circus laundry, much like the laundry of Pottstown, hanging on lines rigged between trailers and trees.

"After reading the rain prediction in the paper," said one Pottstown resident, "I went out there at night feeling sure I would get a seat. When I got there I found they were not only parking cars along Charlotte street, they were turning them away as fast as they could! There was no room left."

JAYCEES, WHO were worried about the looming thunderclouds and weather report for the evening, were relieved when they viewed the full parking lot before the opening bars of the Grand Entrance at the evening performance.

Most children, enthralled with the spectacle of clowns and lions, were unaware that—thanks to the Jaycees—children would profit most from the proceeds of the circus.

Total estimated attendance for the two performances, despite evening thunder-showers neared 5000. Approximately 2000 persons attended the afternoon performance and 3000 attended the evening performance.

After the evening performance, Dr. Brower Yeager, president of the Pottstown Junior Chamber of Commerce, stated that the club was more than pleased with the attendance and proceeds.

"It was wonderful!" Yeager said. "The circus was the best money maker the Jaycees ever sponsored. And it is the kids who will reap the greatest profit from it. The Jaycee proceeds will go into a general welfare fund for underprivileged youth."

"None of it would have been possible without the cooperation of The Mercury," Yeager continued. "It was stories of The Mercury reporter playing the role of a clown which really helped put it over. Most of all, it was the cooperation and interest of the public which made it a success."

Yeager estimated the gross profit for the Jaycees to be $1200. After expenses are taken out more than $1000 will be left for the youth welfare fund.

In addition to their plans to aid youth with proceeds from the circus, the Jaycees made certain most children who wanted to see the circus did so.

For many children, such as the handicapped, this was difficult, but the Jaycees arranged to have crippled children between the ages of 4 and 16 admitted free of charge. Free transportation for the crippled children was provided by the Jaycees and The Mercury.

The Jaycees also provided the Salvation Army with 40 free tickets for children of the Pennhurst school.

After leaving Pottstown, the circus will be on its way to Wilmington, Del. and then to Maryland.

100,000th Person X-rayed At Hospital

five as an average, nearly a half million X-ray pictures were taken in the past 34 years.

On an average, 30 persons a day are X-rayed at the present pace.

ACCORDING to the records, the X-ray laboratory was opened in the Spring of 1916—when glass plates were used. When the count reached 7500 in October, 1927, someone decided to start over.

When Dr. Pechstein took over five and a half years ago, there were 63,000 cases on file. The 37,000 since then represent almost 7500 annually—while it took 11 and a half years to record the first 7500.

The increase is attributed to the fact that X-ray techniques have been refined to the point that 90 percent of all diseases can be diagnosed by the process discovered in 1895 by Wilhelm Roentgen.

In addition, doctors of the younger generation are being taught to use the X-rays and their correlation to the patient's condition and disease.

In comparison between 1916 and the present, the machines are much safer—50 times the amount of X-ray was absorbed on skull pictures than as there is today.

The original films, adopted in 1921 replacing glass plates, were inflammable. These have been perfected so that they are non-flammable.

But progress and technology are expensive. While the original X-ray tube cost from $25 to $150, it costs $1700 today.

Children's Delight Shows 'Clown' True Wonder Of Circus

with the circus, I learned from elephant trainer Steven Fanning, 37 years on the circus loop, to regard this as the most important part of the show.

A ten year old elephant named Fanny, who unwittingly caused a sensation when she was left tethered to a pole in Palisades Park, N. J. when the circus traveled to Philadelphia two weeks ago, was selected as my "vehicle" for the spectacular.

Five tons of elephant and 100 pounds of reporter were wary of each other from the start.

The words "it's like riding a horse," spoken by Fanning (who never rode an elephant), were little encouragement.

Fanny had a "mind" of her own. Her casual greeting Friday was an upbitten trunk and a spray of tepid water in my face.

Next she decided she was going to ride me first. My feet were rather sore before she understood she couldn't.

Once aboard this bulk of hide I thought things would be all right. Again I was mistaken.

Fanny and her oversized playmate, another elephant named Ella Mae, decided to play little jungle games. Seemingly unmindful of the fact my left leg was between them, they started to rub against each other.

A few curt words from Fanning ended that, and just as quickly started the "spec" in motion.

Fanny wouldn't give up. First she sought out a low-slung guywire at the tent entrance. When this failed to dislodge her passenger, she started hunting for ruts in the turf on her way around the tent.

ALTHOUGH I was waving and smiling at the children and adults in the crowd, I secretly wished I was at the reins of something with a smoother ride.

Halfway through the "spec" Fanny gave up her shenanigans and her driver began to enjoy his role.

This clown, ringmaster and elephant driver rolled into one returned to bigtop after the professional, and circulated through the crowds.

As many of the children as were thrilled by the clown's attire and laughing face were downright frightened when they learned a clown could talk.

They seemed shocked when the figure they'd seen in coloring books and cartoons was capable of playing tricks and chatting.

"Daddy, he TALKED to me," one little tyke squealed, looking saucer eyed at his amused father.

"Can I squeeze your nose," inquired another mischievously. Before I got to answer, he took a swipe at my nose.

"See, Clowns don't always laugh," he added smugly to his father.

Another little girl pulled at my red wig and shrieked. "See! It's a fake. I knew clowns were not 'fakes'."

They're a hard working dedicated group of performers driven on by a desire to bring a laugh to otherwise laughless faces, to bring a smile to the lips of the troubled.

As I finished my tour with the circus, I remembered the words Eddie Dullum told me at the ship. They were A. L. Farmer, who died at 83, and Abraham E. Duran, who died at 77.

The oldest tradition of any circus is this parade of performers and pachyderms, clowns and comely showgirls, around the main arena.

IN MY TIME on the road with the circus, I learned from elephant trainer Steven Fanning, 37 years on the circus loop, to regard this as the most important part of the show.

Next she decided she was going to ride me first. My feet were rather sore before she understood she couldn't.

Once aboard this bulk of hide I thought things would be all right. Again I was mistaken.

Fanny and her oversized playmate, another elephant named Ella Mae, decided to play little jungle games. Seemingly unmindful of the fact my left leg was between them, they started to rub against each other.

A few curt words from Fanning ended that, and just as quickly started the "spec" in motion.

Fanny wouldn't give up. First she sought out a low-slung guywire at the tent entrance. When this failed to dislodge her passenger, she started hunting for ruts in the turf on her way around the tent.

ALTHOUGH I was waving and smiling at the children and adults in the crowd, I secretly wished I was at the reins of something with a smoother ride.

Halfway through the "spec" Fanny gave up her shenanigans and her driver began to enjoy his role.

This clown, ringmaster and elephant driver rolled into one returned to bigtop after the professional, and circulated through the crowds.

As many of the children as were thrilled by the clown's attire and laughing face were downright frightened when they learned a clown could talk.

They seemed shocked when the figure they'd seen in coloring books and cartoons was capable of playing tricks and chatting.

"Daddy, he TALKED to me," one little tyke squealed, looking saucer eyed at his amused father.

"Can I squeeze your nose," inquired another mischievously. Before I got to answer, he took a swipe at my nose.

"See, Clowns don't always laugh," he added smugly to his father.

Another little girl pulled at my red wig and shrieked. "See! It's a fake. I knew clowns were not 'fakes'."

They're a hard working dedicated group of performers driven on by a desire to bring a laugh to otherwise laughless faces, to bring a smile to the lips of the troubled.

As I finished my tour with the circus, I remembered the words Eddie Dullum told me at the ship. They were A. L. Farmer, who died at 83, and Abraham E. Duran, who died at 77.

PUC ASKED TO REOPEN TWO ROADS

and listen" sign—was the scene of two fatal accidents during the past five years. The hearing was requested after the death last June of a 36 year old Pottstown father of three.

C. Roy Bush, coordinator of a Pottstown group instrumental in gaining the Route 422 bypass, called the original closing of the Grosstown road crossing in 1934 "a big mistake," and added that the industrial buildup along the Schuylkill river "makes it a necessity" for the opening of additional routes as well as the retention of the Squirrel Hollow road.

BUSH, ADMINISTRATIVE assistant to the plant manager at Doehler-Jarvis, explained that Squirrel Hollow road is now used by many of the plant employees who live in the Boyertown and Bally area. He also pointed to the expected growth of the Rattlesnake Hill section.

"There must be adequate safety devices at the Squirrel Hollow crossing," he said. "We don't say how this should be done. But we do say that it is important."

"We're not only interested in today's problems, but in the problems of tomorrow. One of those problems was created when the Grosstown road crossing was abandoned."

In calling the PUC's attention to the need for reopening Grosstown road, Bush pointed out that Doehler-Jarvis trucks are forbidden to use Squirrel Hollow crossing because it is unsafe.

EARLIER, Melvin H. Rhoads, president of the Douglas (Berks) supervisors, said that township school buses are directed not to use the crossing, "but when the Old Reading pike is flooded, they sometimes have to use the crossing."

Rhoads, who preceded Bush on the stand in Berks County courthouse, Reading, explained that the crossing was dangerous because the Pennsylvania rail road single track was between 12 and 15 feet lower than the three Reading railroad tracks.

"In addition," he added, "there is a 25 percent grade between the two tracks which adds to the danger."

If the grade is leveled—by raising one set of tracks or lowering the other—the grade would lose much of its dangerous features, Rhoads added.

HE ALSO presented the PUC with two proposals:

1—That Cemetery Hill road—600 yards east of the Squirrel Hollow crossing—be opened.

2—That Squirrel Hollow road be widened so motorists could watch for oncoming cars without fear of head-on collisions.

Calling the opening of an additional road the one recommended by the board of supervisors, Rhoads explained that when the road was abandoned in 1934 rail road ties were imbedded in each side of the crossing to prevent cars from traveling across the tracks.

The two roads were vacated at the request of the railroads and the State Highway department by the then Public Service commission. Observers say the present PUC would have the power to order them reopened.

THE RAILROADS testified during the afternoon session that the Squirrel Hollow road was not used frequently enough to warrant improvements to the crossing. A PUC inspection noted the same point after a study of the crossing, but also pointed to the hazardous conditions for motorists approaching the grade.

The PUC study suggested four ways to reduce the hazardous conditions: elimination of trees and vegetation that block the view of the tracks, relocation or elimination of the crossing or installation of safety devices such as flashing lights or an automatic gate.

The railroad, immediately after the report was issued in December, 1960, requested that the PUC order the third solution to the problem—elimination of the crossing.

The supervisors branded the suggestion "a ridiculous one," and petitioned the PUC for a hearing which was held Friday. At the conclusion of the hearing, attorneys for both the township and the railroads said they will file briefs—making it a minimum of three months before a decision can be expected.

THE SQUIRREL Hollow road—and the two roads which the PUC was requested to open—link Old Reading pike and Route 422. The railroad crossing on Squirrel Hollow road is about mid-way between the two traffic routes.

The 36 year old Pottstown father killed last June was Charles Good. His pickup truck was dragged more than 100 feet along the tracks after colliding with a Pennsylvania diesel engine. Several years earlier, in March 1957, Shirley Aul, 20, of Kulpsville, was killed when the car she was a passenger in collided with a Reading passenger train.

Mr. Good's widow, of 501 Spruce street, recently filed a $400,000 damage suit against the Pennsylvania railroad, charging them with "wantonly, carelessly and negligently" operating the train which plowed into her husband's truck.

MEASURING THE CHURCH MILWAUKEE, WIS.—"Are we measuring the success of the church in the same terms as the world does?" Dr. Elmer S. Hjordland of Oak Park, Ill., asked recently in a sermon at Our Savior's Lutheran church.

"Do we point to larger congregations, bigger budgets, the building of imposing churches as signs of advancement?" the clergyman asked. "Should there not be a greater place in our thinking for such fruits as honesty, integrity, courage, love and humility, brought into society through the influence of a faithful Christian church?"

AUTOMATION The age of automation has not displaced the blacksmith. Many modern steel mills still have one or more blacksmiths, whose job it is to make special parts.

THE BIG STRETCH—The Cole Brothers, Clyde Beatty circus boasts to be the world's largest, and Mercury Reporter Willard Randall finds no reason to doubt it as he feeds one of the attraction's largest animals. Randall appeared with the circus in a special role of clown and ringmaster.

Churches Seek Varied Themes To Pique Interest Of Vacation-Minded Pupils

Vacation Bible school time is here!

With the coming of warm, summery days and the approaching end of public school sessions for the year, many churches in the Pottstown and rural areas announced this week the opening date of their vacation Bible schools.

In most churches programs will generally be the same as last year, but in other churches, new agendas are planned to attract the interests and energies of vacationing children.

Among some of the attractions for the small fry congregations are:

A study of four Old Testament heroes—Abraham, Moses, David and Jeremiah—at the vacation church school of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church, Stowe. The school will last two weeks from June 10 to June 30, Monday through Friday at 9 to 11:30 a. m.

PRESENT-DAY heroes also will be studied at the Summer school, and the church will be traced from its initial step at Muhlenberg to the new missions in Alaska, Newfoundland and the Virgin Islands.

Most Vacation Bible schools will run from June 19 to 30 and begin at 9:30 a. m.

Among those local churches holding Vacation Bible school from June 19 to 30 and their themes and directors are:

First Church of the Brethren, “Jesus, Our Saviour,” Emmanuel Lutheran, “Heroes of the Old Testament,” Edna G. Shine-

berg to the new missions in houses and the Rev. L. Samuel Krouse, associate pastor, directors; Grace Lutheran, W. Mark Hendricks, director; St. James Lutheran, St. Peter's Lutheran, “Heroes of the Old Testament,” the Rev. Victor Kroninger, director; First Methodist, “Living For Jesus,” Mrs. William Hurley, director; Searles Memorial Methodist, Mrs. Michael Lengwell, director; Bethel A.M.E. Methodist, Mrs. Henry Beasley, director; First Presbyterian, Mrs. Arthur F. Mann and Mrs. Richard Clark, co-directors; St. Paul's Reformed United Church of Christ, Stowe, “Living For Jesus.”

LOCAL AND area Catholic churches will begin their vacation schools on June 26. The classes will run for one month. Catholic churches included are St. Aloysius, St. Gabriel's of Stowe, Holy Trinity, St. Peter's, and St. John's.

Churches with different start-schools are: Transfiguration Lutheran the last week in June, Mrs. Oron B. Anderson, director; and St. John's Lutheran, July 24 to August 4.

“Personal and Group Relationship” will be the theme of the Coventry Brethren Community church Bible school.

Studies of the Kindergarten department will be “My Family and My Friends,” “Love One Another” will be the study of the primary department, and “Living and Working Together As Christians” will be the study of the Junior department. Mrs. Francis Wampler is director of the children's work.

MOMENT OF PRIDE—Proudly pinning the scouting award, Pro Deo Et Patria—“For God and Country”—to the tunic of her son's uniform is Mrs. Lester Breuninger Sr. The four youths were the first in St. John's Lutheran church, Summerville, to receive the medal, sponsored by the Green Lane Lion's club. The youths are, left to right, Henry A. Heintz, star scout; Joseph W. Keegan, star scout; Allen S. Zepp, first class scout, and Millard L. Breuninger, star scout. Pastor of the church, the Rev. E. L. Angstadt, looks on.

“All Right...I'll Tell You WHY I AM A CATHOLIC”

You may have heard that your neighbor is a Catholic because his democratic freedom are not merely a political code of ethics but a fundamental part of his religion. Human rights, the right of private property, and government with the consent of the people, are essentials of Catholic philosophy of life.

Communism, the lawyer says, is a deadly menace to the world because the solutions it offers to men's problems, though definite, are false and often hideous. Catholicism alone, he adds, offers answers equally as definite and forceful, and backed up by an equal unity and zeal.

“Catholicism,” he continues, “gives me confidence and courage to face the present and the future... the confidence of one who has a map upon which the path to a sound, secure and peaceful future is well outlined, the courage of one who knows that the guide has behind it the experience of 2,000 years, the viewpoint of the world itself, and the devotion of countless millions. I am a Catholic because I am convinced that the Catholic church is the true church founded by Christ.”

A timely pamphlet in which a Catholic layman examines in the light of Catholic teaching important questions of the day, will be mailed to you in a plain wrapper—and nobody will call on you. Write for Pamphlet No. KC-26.

But there are practical and common-sense reasons why so many millions of people are Catholics. And they are such convincing reasons that a young Catholic lawyer, with all the analytical exactness of his profession, has been moved to publish them in a booklet explaining “Why I Am a Catholic.”

The Catholic system of thought, he says, provides him with reasonable and consistent answers to the basic questions which trouble mankind. He finds it reasonable to believe, as the Church teaches, that man has a physical body and a rational soul... that man and his world were created by God... and that man lives primarily “to return to God by saving his soul through love of God and his neighbor.”

With these principles to guide him, the Catholic finds it both logical and necessary to fulfill his obligations to other men... to obey the civil laws... and to labor for the improvement of society as well as personal gain. For him, the basic principles of

Israelite People Find New Meaning in Lives The Golden Text

Ezra reading the law to the Israelites.

"In the world ye have tribulations; but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world."—John 16:33.

Ezra Leads Great Revival By Interpreting Laws

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL
THIS WEEK'S LESSON begins the Israelites' discovery of new meaning in their lives through the religious revival led by Ezra.

Ezra was a scribe, the first such mentioned in the Bible. There were always the scribes who acted as secretaries to rulers; Ezra and those that followed him were a different kind of scribe, one who interpreted the laws. They differed from prophets in that prophets declared new messages, whereas scribes "interpreted the messages that had been previously received." (Wilbur Smith in "Peloubet's Select Notes").

In just this way Ezra about 432 B.C. interpreted the laws of Moses to his people, renewing rites and—more important—the meanings of rites which had long been forgotten or ignored by a people who, busy with the daily complexities of living.

Most of these laws are found in our books of Exodus, Leviticus and Deuteronomy. Ezra would first read from the text; then the Levites would go about among the assembled congregation who "stood in their place," helping them to understand what had been read. Even the directions to the priests were explained to the people so that the priests would not become aloof or haughty about their knowledge.

The Feast of the Tabernacles was one of the rites revived (Nehemiah 8:14-18). For the people built booths or huts on top of their homes, in front of them or in the streets. In these they lived for seven days, in commemoration of the time when the Israelites a thousand years before had lived in temporary huts after God brought them out of Egypt.

The new meaning in life which the Israelites found under Ezra was the joy which comes from returning to forsaken religious thoughts, and from recognizing, confessing and repenting worldly ways.

True happiness is come only from a close relationship with God.

The first passage from Ecclesiastes (1:12-18), probably written by Solomon, is reminiscent of the famous legend of Faust.

Solomon confesses that although he has "seen all" and "given his heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly," he realizes now that there is even more to life than wisdom. Even wisdom must be God-centered to give true meaning to life.

The second Ecclesiastes passage (3:1-14) points out the necessity of fitting in with the laws of God and nature, rather than trying to buck them, for a meaningful life. "For everything there is a season, and a time for every purpose under heaven."

Ecclesiastes 5 lists many short proverbs which help give meaning to life. Among these is the admonition not to make empty promises.

Most important, it points out, enjoy life itself and the good which comes from the inner satisfaction of honest labor well done. Material wealth—"You can't take it with you!"

A Search for Life's Meaning

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

—Scripture—Nehemiah 8-10; Ecclesiastes 1:12-18; 3:1-14; 5.

In 432 B. C. the Israelites experienced a great religious revival, led by Ezra, the scribe. "And all the people gathered themselves together" while Ezra and the Levites read from the law of Moses every day. "They read . . . distinctly, and gave the sense."—Nehemiah 8:1-3, 8.

Many forgotten religious rites were revived, including the Feast of the Tabernacles, which hadn't been celebrated for 1000 years. "The people went forth . . . and made themselves booths . . . and sat under the booths. . . . And they kept the feast seven days."—Nehemiah 8:16-18.

In sackcloth and ashes the people assembled to humble themselves by mourning and fasting. They confessed their sins and those of their fathers, who had so often asked the Lord's help, then ignored His commandments. "Thou hast done right . . . we have done wickedly."—Nehemiah 9.

The priests and Levites entered into a signed covenant "to walk in God's law, which was given by Moses." They promised not to marry with foreigners, to keep the Sabbath and not to "forsake the house of our God."—Nehemiah 10.

Government Seizes Swiss Cheese With Artificially Contrived Eyes

WASHINGTON (AP) — People who like Swiss cheese like it with holes in it.

Natural holes, that is.

So what do you think of punching the holes in with machinery, to make them look like nature's own handiwork?

It's cheating, thinks the federal Food and Drug Administration. It said so Thursday, announcing it has moved for the seizure of 2,700 pounds of Swiss cheese shot through with phony holes.

As indignant as an antique collector who finds someone has bored false worm holes in his deacon's bench, the agency laid it on the line in a formal statement.

"The standard (for proper Swiss cheese) requires the product to have large holes or 'eyes' developed throughout the cheese during the curing process.

"Swiss cheese with well-developed shiny eyes, as compared with 'blind Swiss' cheese without naturally developed eyes, receives a higher grade under the grading system, is in greater demand by consumers and commands a higher price.

"A number of firms have been using Swiss cheese with little or no natural eye development for the preparation of packaged sliced Swiss cheese.

"They have made artificial eyes only a few seconds. Some callers using appropriate mechanical devices and have further promoted the concealment of inferiority by rearranging or by facing the outside of cellophane-wrapped sliced Swiss with slices having wellveloped eyes and placing in the middle of the package some slices with no or fewer holes.

"The whole scheme of foisting off the inferior article is a deliberate one calculated to give the perpetrator a few cents a pound additional profit at the expense of the consumer."

An FDA spokesman said two of the lots the agency asked to be seized were in Chicago and one in New York.

He said one Chicago shipment, to the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. by Green County Cheese Co., Monroe, Wis., totaled about 2,400 pounds.

He identified the other Chicago shipment as being to J. S. Hoffman from Triangle Cheese, also of Monroe.

He listed the New York shipment as being to N. Dorman & Co., New York, from a firm of the same name, likewise of Monroe.

Earthquake Jars San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A light earthquake jarred Oakland and San Francisco Friday night at about 9:02 p.m.

In both cities the quake was described as a single jolt lasting only a few seconds. Some callers to newspapers reported they had heard a rumble just preceding the quake. They said it sounded like rearranging or by facing the outside of cellophane-wrapped sliced Swiss with slices having well-

Homeowners

surveyors were busy staking out the probable route of the $15 million bypass for the past several weeks.

"We ask them questions and they say they don't know the answers," Clarence Baker, 334 South Hanover street, explained. "We ask the sewer authority and they say the same thing—nothing."

"We write letters to the engineers and the State Highway department and get answers that don't say a thing. No one seems to give a damn."

"One day—after we pay for the sewer, undoubtedly — the State is going to come in and give us a couple of weeks to find new homes," he added.

ORGILL DENIED that there is a lack of concern on the authority's part, but admitted that "it was only discussed briefly."

"Under the terms of the bond agreement and according to the ordinance that was passed, every property within the sewer area must be hooked into the sewer line whether the property is going to be demolished or not," he explained.

"The matter still has to be discussed some more, though," he added.

He too blamed the lack of "concrete knowledge" on the route of the bypass for the dilemma. "While those houses are in the path of the bypass today, tomorrow the bypass might be moved and someone else's home in the way."

THE OFFICIAL map of the bypass route—at least as of Friday night—is the one in borough council chambers in Pottstown borough hall. It lists 15 homes in the bypass route—all of which would have to be condemned.

"Yet someone told me that the engineers have a new route picked out and only a few homes will have to go," Baker said. "How are we supposed to know where to turn?"

The map in borough hall lists those properties between 323 South Hanover street—the Naylor Brothers grocery store — and the Banus apartments at 366 South Hanover street for eventual condemnation. The apartments are occupied by four families and several of the homes have more than one family.

The sewer excavation crews are now in the middle of the "condemned" area—and according to the residents "putting the sewer laterals wherever they want."

"ONE OF THE foremen asked me where he should put it and I told him that the house was being condemned and I have no need for service," John T. Banus, owner of the apartments, explained. "So the next day he told me he put it in where he thought it was best."

"But before I take any action I intend to see a lawyer," Banus, 356 South Hanover street, explained. "This is nothing but throwing away good money."

The "good money" represents a $150 hookup charge, a $64 annual rental and a $6.90 frontage fee. In most cases the 15 properties have a minimum frontage of 40 feet — bringing the first year's cost to at least $494.

"That's a lot of money to pay for service that we may only get to use for a year or two—if we get to use it at all," Mrs. F. Harry Dilser, 344 South Hanover street, said.

THE BYPASS — 9.56 miles from Limerick to Douglassville — will be constructed in three phases. The first phase, from the Pottstown airport in Limerick to Firestone boulevard, is already in the final stages of detailed engineering plans.

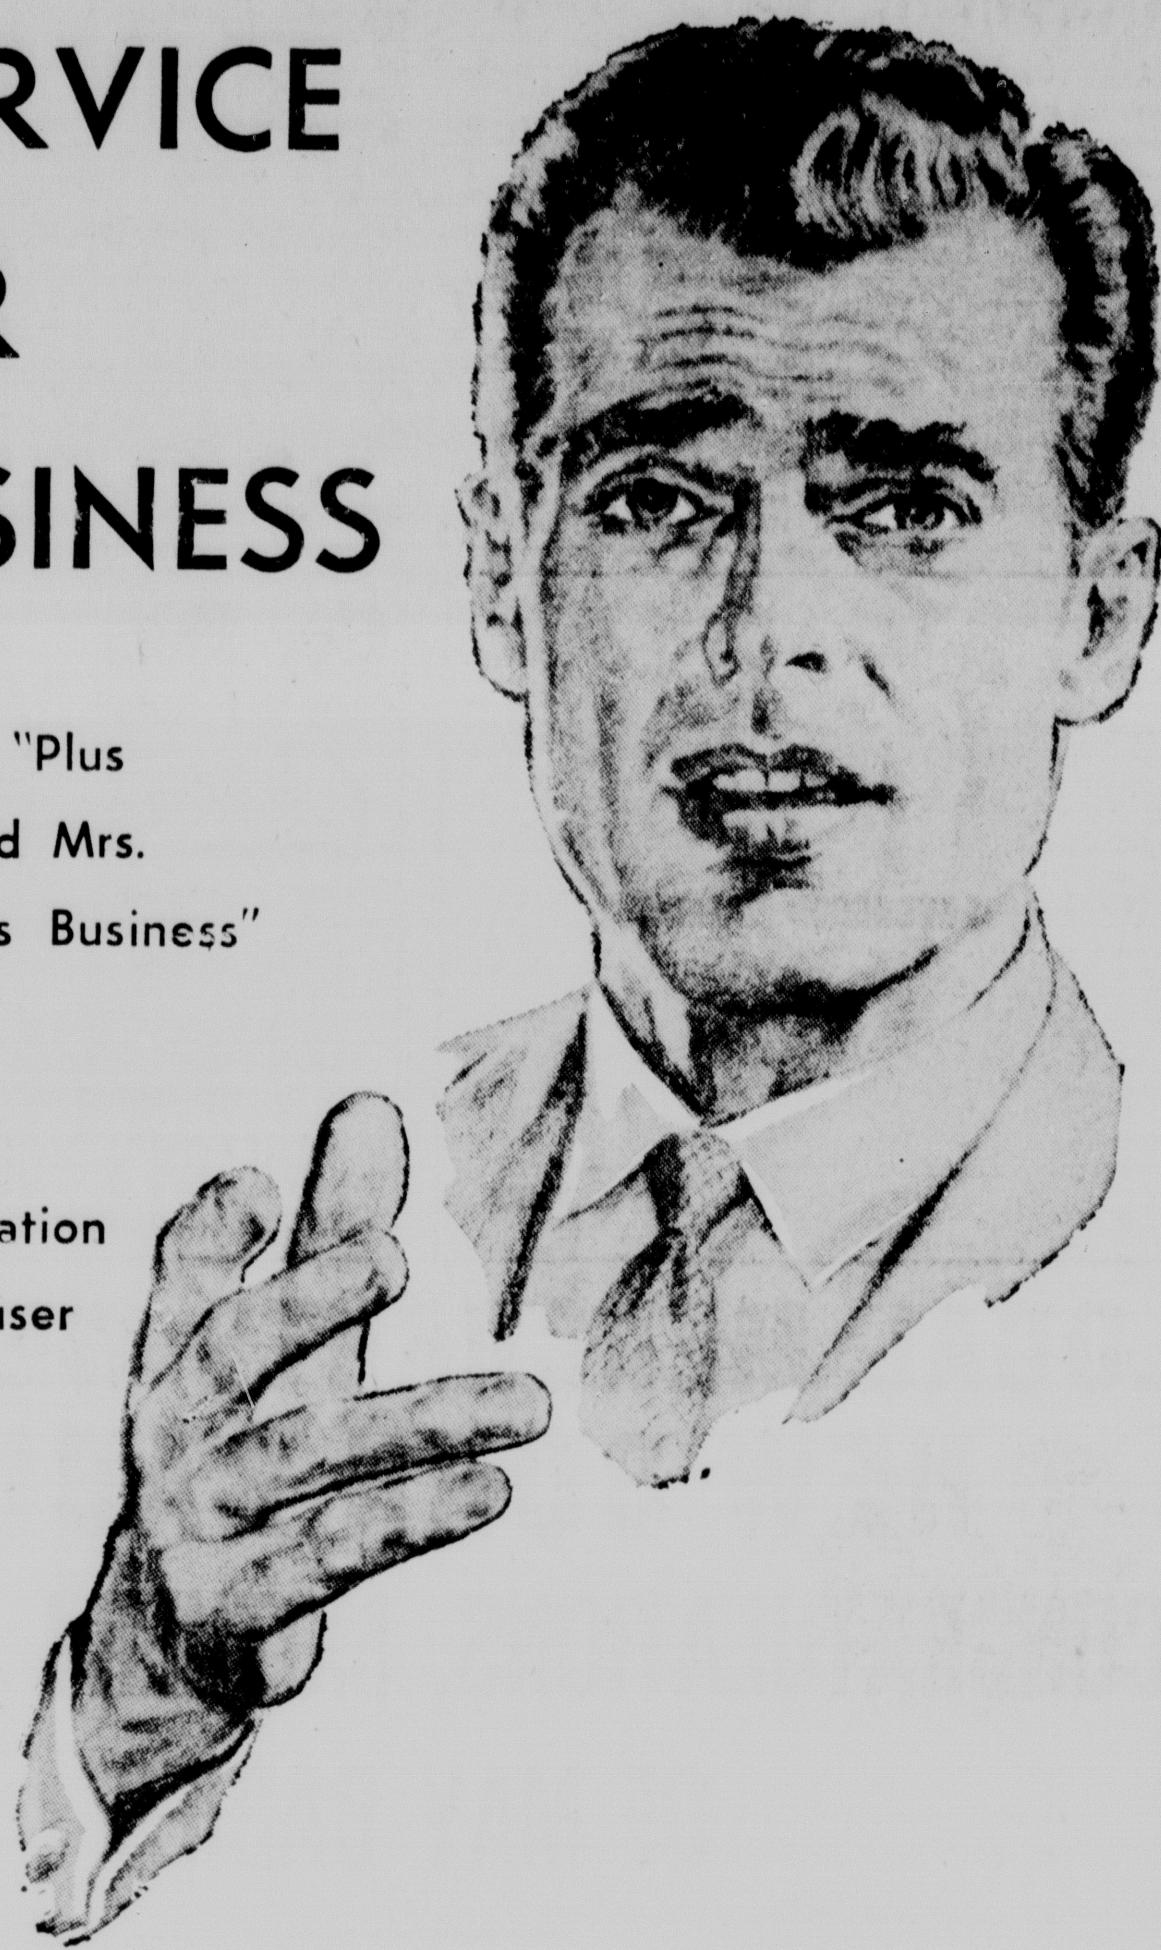

No starting date for construction, however, was set for any of the three stages. The second stage, to a point south of Bramcote where the bypass will cross the Schuylkill river, will include the South Hanover street area in South Pottstown. The third stage rejoins Route 422 where the present road splits into two one-way sections in Douglassville.

Four lanes and 120 feet wide, it is expected to carry 15,000 cars daily. It will have a 60 mile an hour speed limit.

Food Stamp Program May Provide Information on U.S. Buying Habits

HARRISBURG (AP)—The pilot study food stamp program that went into effect this week will provide a pool of basic information on the buying habits of American consumers.

In fact research to obtain the basic information is one of the most important phases of the food stamp plan, both from the standpoint of welfare and agricultural marketing.

The research program accompanying the pilot food stamp plan will produce two principal pools of information: the pattern of food purchases by low income families; the impact of the stamp plan itself on food purchases.

In addition to that information the program also will provide a mass of incidental data that could provide a wealth of valuable marketing information for commodity groups.

Analysis of that data will have an important effect on farm programs, both directly and indirectly. That is a prime reason the stamp plan is being administered by the U.S. Agriculture Department.

The pilot studies also could provide important basic information for advertisers and packagers since the research program will provide one of the most intensive—if not the most intensive—marketing studies ever made.

The areas selected for the pilot studies differ in ethnic background and traditions, eating habits, regional characteristics, urban-rural composition and other respects. About the only thing they all have in common is lingering poverty.

The pilot stamp plan includes Pennsylvania's Fayette county, one of the nation's hardest-hit regions of chronic unemployment. The USDA had some groundwork there to work on, since it was part of the department's pilot study on rural development.

Fayette county is about three-fourth rural, by census definition. However, its economy is linked to manufacturing and agriculture representing only a small part.

The other seven areas chosen for the pilot program have a different ratio of rural to urban population — Detroit, for example, where the stamp plan includes no rural population.

In each of the eight areas a sample of retail stores was developed before the plan went into effect. It included a detailed analysis of store cash register tapes for four weeks to determine the pattern of food purchases. That work alone will provide a tremendous amount of important information.

After a few months of operations the same stores will be canvassed again to obtain information for comparison with the earlier data.

Not the least important information that will be developed will be data on the diet of the low-income groups. Some researchers working with projections based on statistical data, have indicated that the diet of low-income groups often is poor even when enough money is available for food. The content that food diet is basically a problem of education.

The stamp plan pilot study should determine some facts on that, since an educational program will accompany the plan in each area. The pre-plan and post-plan market data should show changes in diet through purchasing patterns.

For the agricultural economy the stamp plan is a research boon.

A Tree for Permanence

By EDNA HALLIDAY

The Ginkgo or "maidenhair tree," as it is often called, is an ornamental upright tree which is for specimen use.

Only male trees should be planted because of the undesirable odor of the fruits of the female trees.

The Ginkgo has the advantage over most other trees in that it is almost entirely immune to destructive insects and diseases. It is highly resistant to wind breakage. It will grow in poor soils and withstand drought. Under normal conditions it makes rapid growth.

As a young tree, it is apt to be gawky in appearance, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Given time, however, it will grow into a large, picturesque tree, 60 to 80 feet in height.

The Ginkgo, when mature, has a straight trunk. The branches go up at a 45-degree angle, giving the tree a striking Oriental appearance, quite different from any other tree. It belongs to the yew family.

It has attractive fan-shaped leaves, as shown.

It is a conifer, but is deciduous, the foliage assuming a clear yellow color before dropping in the Fall.

Several varieties have been developed by the horticulturists which have different habits of growth. Umbrella ginkgo is more suitable for a ranch type home, as it grows only about 25 feet high with a spread of 30 feet. Still other varieties have other forms.

Weeder's Guide

By EARL ARONSON

Every garden, no matter how small, should have at least a few tomato plants. A half dozen plants will provide enough vine-ripe, luscious tomatoes for an average family.

There are many good varieties that will grow in virtually any part of the country. Our favorite is Rutgers, but there are others just as good. These include Big Boy, Homestead, Marglobe and many others. Jubilee is a good yellow variety if you want a change of color.

Marion, Manalucie and Homestead are quite resistant to fusarium wilt. And Marion and Manalucie also resist gray leaf spot, which often afflicts tomatoes in the South.

Buy stocky, fresh, disease-free plants, preferably in individual bands, peat or clay pots or other containers. The cost will be greater but the survival rate more than offsets the added expense.

About 25 pounds of 5-10-10 fertilizer should be mixed in the soil before planting. Side-dress with about half that amount of fertilizer when the first cluster of fruit is set.

Tomato growers will debate the merits of staking and pruning or natural growth. Staking will provide slightly earlier, larger fruit. It also facilitates spraying and dusting, increases yield, and reduces rot and sunburn. Natural growth is less laborious and less costly.

Generally, tomatoes are trained to one or two main stems, which permits setting plants as close as two feet apart.

Use sturdy stakes six feet tall. Place the stakes on the opposite side from the cluster, preferably after the first bud cluster is formed. All clusters will be on the same side of the stem.

In pruning for one stem, remove all suckers, allowing only the terminal end or bud to grow. For two stems, leave the first sucker below the first bloom cluster to form the second stem. Remove all suckers on both stems, leaving the two terminal buds to grow. Do not remove leaves from the main stems. Suckers should be pinched or cut when small.

For tying plants to stakes, use soft twine or cloth strips. The ties should be loose around the stem so as not to interfere with growth. The best spot for the first tie is just below the first fruit cluster. Subsequent ties should be below additional clusters.

The soil should be kept fairly moist throughout the season. A mulch of straw, sawdust, marsh hay or peat moss will help retain moisture.

If the weather is too hot or too cold the fruit may not set. Too much nitrogen also may cause blossoms to drop. So may suck-

State Is Declared Sheep Scabies Area

HARRISBURG (AP)—A federal agriculture official reported Pennsylvania has been declared a sheep scabies infected area. The commonwealth is one of 22 states so designated, said Dr. J. L. Hourigan, chief of the special diseases eradication section of the U.S. agricultural research service. The designation means that until the skin disease in sheep is eliminated farmers selling sheep to out-of-state buyers will face extensive regulations and health certification requirements.

For pest control, use a combination dust or spray that contains DDT or TDE and a fungicide such as maneb, zineb or copper. Apply weekly the first fruit set and spray once a week thereafter.

One expert says that if you use tobacco, wash your hands with soap and water before transplanting and pruning tomatoes to reduce danger of spreading tobacco mosaic, a virus disease. The disease may dwarf your plants.

Modern Manners

By CAROLYN HAGNER SHAW

Author of "Modern Manners — Etiquet for All Occasions"

ARE YOU A BEAUTY-PARLORE PEST?

Why is it that so many women "let their hair down"—both literally and figuratively—when visiting a beauty salon? The infraction of the rules of plain everyday courtesy, practiced by far too many of us, are really rather appalling!

During recent weeks, I have been watching some of these actions and have come up with the following ideas about things that should not be done. Ask yourself, honestly, if you are guilty of doing any of them.

Do you disregard the factor of time? Wandering in a half-hour late for your appointment is inexcusable. By doing so, you force the operator to sit around waiting. When you finally do put in an appearance, you are bound to overlap her next customer. If this causes you to be longer in being served, because the operator is trying to please two of you at once, let's hope you don't make caustic comments regarding the delay. It's your own fault, after all!

Do you make every effort to find a baby-sitter for Junior, or do you just lug him along to the beauty salon? His natural inability to keep still more than a few minutes at a time, causes bedlam for all concerned. Operators and other customers are driven to distraction by his antics while you are being beautified.

Are you the person who finds fault with everything, making loud comments about this and the other thing—all of them derogatory? From the shampoo on down the line, nothing pleases you. If you are in this category, why not go some place else? I'm sure the operators would bless you if you did!

While under the drier, do you help yourself to fingernail polish on a table nearby, and calmly fix your own nails? Rather brazen procedure, don't you think? Also, do you tear out that recipe that catches your eye in the magazine you are reading? Not very considerate when you know that the magazines are there for others to enjoy, too.

Speaking of the drier — are you the worst pest of all? Do you carry on a shouted conversation with the woman next to you, or with a waiting friend, while trying to make yourself heard above the roar of the machine?

Why the people who do this don't realize that the gossip they are passing on, or sometimes really personal observations, can be heard from one end of the shop to the other, I will never know!

The moral of my questions, if there is one, is that women should try to be more thoughtful of others, and conduct themselves with a little dignity when patronizing a beauty salon. Something to think about?

QUESTION: Now that ice-cream time has rolled around again, I wish you would express your views about how it should be served. At a luncheon yesterday, my glass was placed on a small coaster. There was no room for the spoon, except in the glass. I do not like to leave the spoon sticking in the air in the glass, but what to do?

Mrs. L.H.B.

ANSWER: Ice-cream should always be served on a coaster, never a coaster. Some etiquette experts say to leave the spoon in the glass. I am against this rather stupid idea because it is not only awkward, but you are bound to give yourself a poke in the eye if you aren't careful. However, if the tea is served on a coaster, the only recourse is to place the spoon across the top of your plate. Do not place it on the table.

DOUBTING Thomas: I have poison ivy? After being cooped up in this concrete jungle all summer?

M. D.: Maybe swimming in water contaminated with poison ivy?

D. T.: I hardly have time to shower!

M. D.: I'd swear you have poison ivy. Look — scratches on flushed skin with oozing, itching blisters along each scratch.

D. T.: I'd know those three shiny poison ivy leaves any place!

He's Cautious D. T.: But how many grow in the city? Besides, I always wash with strong soap and lukewarm water after touching any plant. Not hot water, because that opens pores to let in leaf oil!

M. D.: Didn't you once find poison ivy growing in your window box?

D. T.: And we sprayed it according to your directions — three pounds of salt in a gallon of soapy water. Kerosene.

Banker Irked By Daughter's Gift Refusal

NEW YORK (AP) — Socially prominent Diana Cullom Davis has refused to surrender a $3.8-million trust fund to her father's alma mater, Princeton University.

Said her father, investment banker Shelby Cullom Davis, who set up the trust fund for his daughter in 1938: "I can only attribute her unreasonable selfishness to the unrealistic materialism prevalent among American youth today."

Davis claimed that, after making other financial provisions for Diana, he decided the trust fund should go to the history department of Princeton, where he was graduated in 1930.

His daughter's reluctance to surrender the trust came to light when she refused to show up to sign a transfer of the money to Princeton.

At Diana's birth, Davis set up a $4,000 trust for her. With additional gifts and investment management by the father, it grew over the years to its present healthy financial stature.

Diana, meanwhile, is engaged to be married June 24 to John Means Spencer, a history teacher at Darrow School in New Lebanon, N. Y.

Davis also set up a similar trust fund for a son, Shelby, a Princeton graduate now with the Bank of New York.

The father, voicing his disappointment at his daughter's attitude, added: "We only hope her brother will be more understanding of his responsibility to society when he is asked to turn over his $3.8-million trust fund to a philanthropic foundation which my wife and I are planning to establish."

House Questions Actress' Intent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Helen Hayes got some good reviews as an actress, but low marks in "dedication" during House debate.

Nobody mentioned Miss Hayes' name, but the reference was unmistakable when Rep. Barratt O'Hara, D-Ill., spoke of "a great actress" who had gone abroad on a U. S. Information Agency dramatic tour "not with a spirit of dedication, but for $2,500 a week."

The House was debating the USIA appropriation. In committee hearings on the bill, Heath Bowman, USIA cultural director, testified Miss Hayes was paid $2,500 a week while on tour in "Skin of Our Teeth." Bowman added, "It is half of what she would get in this country."

O'Hara said the money was coming from taxpayers, some of whom among his constituents couldn't afford to buy a legitimate theater ticket in this country.

He said it was a case of thinking, "not of her country, not of what she could do for her country, but of what her country could do for her."

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, said he agreed there had been "a raid on the taxpayers" and said he was interested in finding out who sent the actress abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bush Sr. to Mark 50th Anniversary With Open House

By DOLLIE SMITH
(Mercury Staff Writer)

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bush Sr., 408 Fairview street, Stowe, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary this weekend with five generations to share in the festivities.

The top link in the chain begins with Mrs. Bush's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Schaeffer, who also resides at the Fairview street address.

Completing the chain is Mrs. Bush, her son, Kenneth who lives at Moser road, his son, Gerald and Gerald's six year old son, Gerald John.

Residents of Stowe for almost half a century, Mr. and Mrs. Bush were married by the late Rev. Lindenmuth, then pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran church, Stowe, in the parsonage.

The ceremony was performed June 3, 1911 following a courtship which stemmed from a meeting at the church where both were and still are members.

Mrs. Bush is the former Emma Schaeffer, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Schaeffer. She was born and reared in Amityville.

Mr. Bush's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Bush, lived in Douglassville.

At the time of their marriage, Mrs. Bush was working at Gudebrod Brothers Silk company. Stowe and her husband took over one of Schwab's bread routes.

They lived in Pottstown briefly before moving to Rice street in Stowe.

After the couple's three sons were born, Mrs. Bush again went to work. She was an employee of Quality Knitting for 25 years.

"My father died and my mother came to live with us," she explained. "Because my mother helped to keep house and care for the children I was able to help supplement the family income."

Mr. Bush later worked, at Shoemakers Bridge works until its closing, then went to Gudebrods during the depression and has been there since that time.

In August he will celebrate his 71st birthday. To his surprise, on Friday he was presented with several gifts, in celebration of the anniversary, from co-workers and employees as well.

"It's a nice place to work," he insists. "I get along with everybody." Mr. Bush sets up and repairs machinery.

He also serves as traffic officer on holidays and Sundays at Montgomery County park in Green Lane. Almost tops in seniority there, he worked at the park for about 16 years.

A fire police captain for West End Fire company, he has been a member of that organization for 50 years.

Mrs. Bush is active in St. Peter's church where she is a Sunday school teacher, a member of the Missionary society and United Lutheran Church Women. She is 67 years old.

Their son, Daniel lives at 20 North Washington street, Boyertown. Ralph Jr. resides at 24 East Fifth street. They also have seven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren all of whom are expected at the couple's open house party tomorrow afternoon.

The party will take place at the celebrant's home where they've lived for the last 20 years.

PHILS SHELL FRIEND WITH 12-HIT BURST

Herrera's Two Doubles Pace Outsized Attack

PITTSBURGH (AP)—John Buzhardt blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates on nine hits Friday night as the Philadelphia Phillies overpowered the defending world champions 6-0 behind a 12-hit barrage.

Buzhardt struck out three and walked only one in positing his first victory of the season after losing five straight.

The big right-hander was in serious trouble only in the second and seventh innings, but both times he pitched out of danger.

Pancho Herrera sparked the Phillies' hitting attack with a pair of doubles and two runs batted in. Tony Gonzalez, Kenny Walters, Tony Taylor and Lee Walls also chipped in with two hits each.

Right-hander Bob Friend, who won his first four games this season, was tagged with the loss—his sixth in a row as a starter and his seventh in 12 decisions.

The Phils played Friend in the third inning, erupting for four hits and three runs. Buzhardt's double, singles by Tony Taylor and Lee Walls, an infield out and Pancho Herrera's two-base hit accounted for the runs.

Back to back doubles by Tony Gonzalez and Kenny Walters gave the Phils their first run in the second. They added singles tallies in the fifth and seventh.

By WARREN HOWARD
(Mercury Sports Writer)

AMERICAN LEGION BASEBALL GETS under way again today, with everybody in action except the Steelers, who play their first game next Wednesday. Some things appear different with the Steelers this year. Their traditional exhibitions with Perkasee and Fort Washington are missing. May be picked up later. Instead, the USWA 2326-

RALPH BORNEMAN

Post 47-sponsored entry is starting right off with the league slate. Speaking of Legion baseball, Ralph Borneman and Jim Egolf, the third coaching regime in as many seasons at Boyertown, have a real rebuilding job on their hands, but a couple of lanky righthanded pitchers in Dick Kauffman and Dan Boyer should ease the path for the youngsters somewhat. The Bears open their season today against West Lawn at Gabelsville.

They repay the call at West Lawn tomorrow. The Baby Steelers Connie Mack unit also goes in its first game today. The first Connie Mack hit had to be set back when Pottstown Junior high got involved in its league championship fight and had to make up some games. The Baby Steelers were scheduled to meet Lower Pottsgrove. As it turned out however, the entire schedule for the Connie Mack circuit was rained out.

CARROLL H. (BINO) COOK, the sports publicist at the University of Pittsburgh, is one guy whose mail is bound to brighten a sportsman's day. The latest gem from Cook concerns a write-up of a contest in which the attendance was estimated at 8000. Says the quote: "The attendance was estimated at 8000. At least 5000 came disguised as seats. . . . If you think this is one track season that Heber T. Meyers is glad to see over, you're just scratching the surface. We've got some real lean years coming up," says the veteran Pottstown High mentor. George Sleight of Easton, who took down last Tuesday night's 50-lap stock car race at the Hatfield speedway, didn't even make the feature his first time out, believe it or not. Sleight arrived late, didn't get in any practice laps, then failed to make it in both a heat and the consolation race. He was however, the leading point man on the Hatfield oval until the last day a year ago, when his mount developed the miseries. . . . Friday night's rain came too late to wash out the Memorial park schedule of games. Maybe we're due for a change.

BOBBY MARSHMAN WILL TRY his big car luck again tomorrow in a 100-mile National championship event at Milwaukee, Wis., after finishing seventh (finally) at Indianapolis last Tuesday. Marshman was awarded seventh spot by the early releases from the big speedway, then moved up to sixth when the fifth-place finisher, Alex Keller, dropped to eighth. After an all-night study, Marshman was pushed back to seventh place again, with Keller returning to fifth. . . . Local observers say Keller had made a pit stop late in the race that should have dropped him a couple of places, but they weren't carrying the watches. . . . Marshman protested the final decision, but of course, to no avail. Marshman will also try his luck in the 50-lap George Fonder Memorial at Hatfield next week, then take a whirl at the 100-miler June 18 at Langhorne. He is now being touted as one of the "real good" young drivers.

BROOKSIDE COUNTRY CLUB had no Ladies' Day golfing activity due to the holiday. Will resume come Tuesday. . . . The Sacred Heart team of the Church league has a father and son combination, the only one in the league. The father is Ray Vanderville, who played third base during Friday night's 4-3 loss to St. Aloysius-St. Gabriel's, and the son is Larry, the centerfielder, who had a pair of hits and an RBI. Understand the baseball in the league has been real good and has been drawing larger crowds than any time in the last few seasons. . . . Perhaps almost didn't make it this season. . . . Results. Three players called this desk Friday night, looking for information about teams. They want to play ball. . . . Maybe the Phillies could use 'em, huh? All joshing aside, looks like the interest is picking up. And man, it's about 11-m.e.

Dickinson Leads by 7 at Memphis

MEMPHIS (AP)—Lanky Gard-plated groove, boomed to a seven-stroke lead in the $30,000 Memphis Open golf tournament Friday with a 5-under-par 33-63.

The handsome one-time protegee of the famed Ben Hogan danced a happy little jig when his fifth birdie putt went in the cup on 15. He added another on 18 to log a 63-65-128, the lowest 36-hole total on the circuit this year.

The 120-pounder from Tequesta, Fla., who hasn't won a tournament since 1957, opened with a bogey and played with frowning concentration until his game turned with a birdie on four. From there on he could do no wrong. Don Whitt, who started this second round just a stroke behind Dickinson, sagged to a 33-38-71 over the 6423 yard 34-36-70 Colonial country club course. Of the 91 pros who teed up, 28 were under-par.

Now Up to Big 5

Gophers Agree to Rose Renewal

CHICAGO, (AP)—Now that Minnesota has opened the way for Big Ten Renewal of a Rose Bowl contract, the conference will have to woo a pact offer from the Athletic Association of the Western Universities (Big Five).

The shoe is one the other foot in the Pasadena, Calif., post-season football classic which, up until this year, found the Pacific Coast group pressing for a Big Ten participation on a contract basis.

Minnesota Thursday ended its longtime opposition to a formal Rose Bowl pact in a 70-42 favorable vote by the school's senate.

This apparently will break the 5-5 Big Ten deadlock which killed the contract in May of 1960.

ALTHOUGH THE contract died, the Big Ten still permitted any member to accept a Rose Bowl bid on individual basis. Because 1960 co-champion Minnesota was the Nation's top-ranked team, the Big Five invited the Gophers for a Jan. 2, 1961 appearance in which they were drubbed by Washington 17-7.

The Big Five could have invited any team in the country and it remains to be seen whether the California-Southern California - UCLA - Stanford - Washington loop wants to tie up formally again with the Big Ten which scored 12 victories in the 15 games played in the series started by the Midwest league and the old Pacific Coast conference in 1947, with the PCC's successor, the Big Five, carrying on in 1960.

West coast fortune changed the past two years, however, with Washington's swift Huskies outclassing both Wisconsin and Minnesota.

If the Big Five wants to hustle into another contract, it's possible the Big Ten could sign up before the 1962 Rose bowl game, although formal approval on two year's notice.

GLOBEMASTER ENTERS PRIOR TO DEADLINE

Price Colt Rules 4-5
Pick In Field
Of Nine

By JOHN CHANDLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, (AP)—Carry Back picked up a speedy playmate named Globemaster Friday, but remained a heavy favorite to win the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes and become the ninth horse to sweep the triple crown series for 3-year-olds.

With the Kentucky Derby and Preakness already locked in the vault, Carry Back is expected to be an odds-on choice at around 4 to 5 in the mile and one-half final jewel of the triple Saturday afternoon at Belmont park.

However, owners and trainers of six of his eight rivals apparently need more convincing. The six have been chasing Carry Back without success from Kentucky to Maryland, and now New York, and the Belmont stacks up as one of the best in many years.

Carry Back, owned by Mrs. Katherine Price of Miami and trained by her husband, Jack, rallied from 11th place to win the derby May 6 in Louisville. Fifteen started in the Derby. Then on May 20 in Baltimore he threw another scare into his backers by charging up from next to last in a nine-horse field to grab the Preakness.

THE LOADED question is: Will the little ham actor character—one of the most popular horses in many a moon—be able to snatch the brass ring this time?

As expected, Robert Lehman's Ambiposee joined the hunt Friday morning when entries closed at $250 per horse. Ambiposee ran 12th in Kentucky, then won the $124,000 Jersey derby last Tuesday at Garden State park.

But, the big excitement was generated half an hour before the box closed when Trainer Tom Kelly marched in and calmly entered Leonard P. Sasso's Globemaster.

This $80,000 auction yearling was the speedy pacemaker in both the 1 1/4 miles of the Derby and the 1 3/16 miles of the Preakness.

"I HAD BEEN thinking of the Belmont all along," Kelly said of Globemaster. "You don't get many chances with a horse classy enough to run in this race, and we have a good, fit colt so here we are."

The Belmont is the toughest hurdle, and no colt has completed the great triple since Calumet's Citation in 1948. Globemaster ran sixth in the Derby and was runnerup in the Preakness.

Others in the 93rd Belmont, inaugurated in 1867 when Rutless earned $1850, are the King ranch's Bal Musette, Alberta ranches' Fluterby, Mrs. Robert L. Dutter's Guadalcana, Jacob Sher's Sherkuck, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Dr. Miller, and Ogden Phipps' Hitting Away.

All will pack 126 pounds, a fast track seems assured since the weatherman promises sunny skies. A crowd of 50,000 is expected.

Post time is 4:50 p. m. (Pottstown time). If nine start, the purse will gross $148,650 with the winner taking a record $104,900.

A FORMOSAN PUBLISHER sends this polite note with every manuscript he rejects:

"Your manuscript has filled us with boundless delight. Were we to publish it, however, it would be impossible to maintain the new standard we would be setting. Obviously, in the next 10,000 years we would never find the equal of your inspired creation. We are compelled, therefore, to return your divine work, and to beg you a thousand times to forgive our heart-breaking action."

Overheard at the 19th Hole:

"How's the aching back?"
"Getting better, thank you."
"And the bum shoulder?"
"Coming along nicely."
"And the pain in the neck?"
"Dunno. She's visiting her mother."

Peru; and Rene Cancino, of Peru; (and standing, same order) Frank Walling, a State department official traveling with the unionists; Jorge Beltran, of Peru; Agustin Maneiro, of Venezuela; and State department interpreters Fernando Devoto and Carlos Guevara.

life," it was explained.

Since the tour of The Mercury was the foreign visitors last stop in Pottstown, they took the opportunity through their interpreters to "express our deepest appreciation for the way we were treated and received in Pottstown."

"It is our hope that one day we will again be able to visit your fine city and that someday you might visit ours," they added.

THE NEXT stop on the 90-day United States tour is New York city where the unionists will visit with their United Nations delegates from their own countries, the International Conference of Free Trade Unions "and the usual tourist highlights in New York," Walling said.

After eight days in New York city they will spend a week at Rutgers university in New Brunswick studying labor-management relations, several days in Minneapolis, Minn., and a week in Chicago. They will then fly to Mexico City for three months of study at the University of Puerto Rico and several days in Washington, D.C.

The six are Herminio Aguilar, Jorge Beltran, Rene Cancino and Isidoro Garcia, all of Peru; Agustin Maneiro, of Venezuela; and Luis Villanueva, of Honduras. In addition to Walling, they were accompanied by two State department interpreters, Fernando Devoto and Carlos Guevara.

BURN VICTIM FACES LONG RECOVERY

burned on both legs, the lower part of his body and his hands.

The Haldemans were visiting McAfee's farm on the Fairview-Nantmeal road, to help hitch up cultivators to the tractor.

Mrs. Miriam Richards, McAfee's sister, warned her brother to move the tractor out of the barn into the yard before attempting to start it. They were aware that "something was wrong" with the tractor engine, which was throwing out gas on each turn of the crank.

"You might burn down the barn if you do it in there," Mrs. Richards warned prophetically.

THE HALDEMANs rushed McAfee to Dr. William G. Munster, Exton, and Dr. Munster sent the victim to West Chester Memorial hospital under the care of Dr. Warren X. Collman, West Chester, a fter administering pain-killing drugs.

Dr. Collman told The Mercury it will take from a week to ten days to learn the severity of McAfee's burns, and it will not be known for certain until then, how long McAfee will be immobile.

McAfee, a bachelor, has a dairy herd and works other farms in the area on a share basis, in addition to the chores on his own farm.

He lost three fingers in an auto accident several years ago, relatives said, in another brush with death. McAfee's car, in which he was driving alone, rolled over several times and was demolished.

woods when several persons answered Mrs. Brewer's calls for aid. He has not been seen since. He left his car behind when he fled.

Copeland was named on warrants for assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery, and assault with intent to kill. The charges were filed before North Coventry township Justice of the Peace Harry W. Anderson.

MRS. BREWER, a 34 year old mother of six children who is separated from her husband, swore out the warrants from her bed in Pottstown hospital. The new charges were added to a general disorderly conduct warrant drawn Thursday.

The victim was reported slightly improved Friday, with a broken right arm, two serious scalp cuts and bruises of the head, face and body.

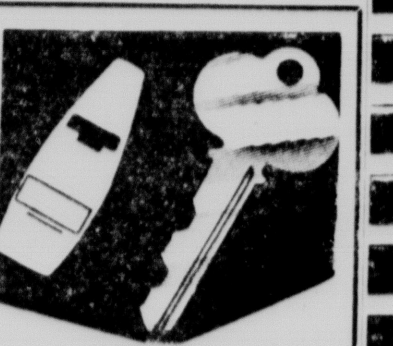

Mrs. Brewer told police the beating stemmed from an argument between herself and Copeland. She said he struck her with a wooden mallet, knocked her to the ground and kicked her repeatedly, threatening to kill her.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love & Marriage

You'd Better Call Off Those Marriage Plans

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My boy friend and I have been going steady for a year. We're going to get married when I get to be 18. Now I'm 16 and he's 21.

The other night he told me he thought it would be wonderful if we could have a baby now because we love each other so of for this young man suggesting such an outrageous thing is that he may think that if you were going to have a baby your parents might let you marry him without waiting any longer.

Whatever may have been in his mind, however, his thoughts were far from the right kind and you had better call off those marriage plans immediately, for more reasons than one.

Besides the fact that a young man who would make such a suggestion—and especially to a girl of 16—is not a fellow to whom you could confidently entrust your future, you shouldn't, at your age, consider yourself engaged to any 21 year old, and I'm surprised your parents allow it—or could it be they don't know?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

What does a fellow do when he takes his girl to a big school dance and she gets all puffed up because an older fellow dances with her a lot?

This girl and I are sophomores in high school and it was a senior she met at the dance and now she talks about him all the time and when I asked her if she had been out with him since the dance she didn't come right out with either a Yes or a No but sort of horsed around. Do you think I should break off with her and tell her to put all her time on the senior and see if she can get him?

Jack

Dear Jack: I wouldn't be so silly if I were you. You don't know enough about what's been going on, if anything, to take such a drastic step as to break off with the girl.

Maybe she just wants to impress you by making you believe the senior took her out so you'll think you've got a pretty nifty girl friend that boys fall for the minute they meet her.

Take it easy and don't get all excited about it. Just act as though it's all right with you if she goes out with the senior by taking it all perfectly casually. If she really is just playing games with you, an attitude like that on your part should put an end to them—that is, if she likes you enough.

ing back, so I dug some worms for him," Dinino, a Reading man, told Sgt. Lawler.

NAGENGAST told Dinino he fell. The victim then met Fred Wilson operator and Richard Brunner an employee of a High and Franklin streets service station. He told them he had fallen.

Wilson assisted Nagengast to

PREACHERS GO TO PEOPLE

COLUMBUS, Ohio. —Fifty-two Methodist ministers are taking part in a unique open-air preaching mission throughout Ohio. Assisted by laymen from local churches who usher, distribute songbooks and sing in choirs, the pastors are preaching at county fairs, State parks, drive-in theaters, on street corners and church and courthouse steps.

Their instructions from Bishop Hazen G. Werner are: "Preach to people where they are and how they are. Forget your conventional terms and talk straight out to people."

a used car lot on West High street, where Wilson called a Goodwill ambulance and notified Nagengast's wife. Nagengast again said he suffered a severe cut—and what is determined to be a fractured skull—in a fall from the railroad embankment.

Nagengast told doctors at Memorial hospital in the injuries came in a fall. Then he changed his story: "I must have dozed off. I awoke and a man started to hit me with a flat-head shovel."

Nagengast remains in fair condition, under the care of a neurosurgeon, at Reading hospital.

Lawler expects to interview him over the weekend. "Dinino, Wilson and Brunner saw no one else in the area. But then on the other hand, I've been all over the place, and can't find where he might have fallen to get himself banged up like that," Lawler summarized.
